SYSTEM RULES

- Use Cormorant for emotional and artistic moments. Use Inter for functional and informational moments. Never use Cormorant for body copy below 16px or for navigation labels — it is a display family, not a workhorse text family.
- Default Cormorant weight is Light (300). Reach for Medium (500) only for section headings or moments that require structural emphasis.
- Use Cormorant Italic for emotional content (album titles, song titles, pull quotes, romantic copy lines). Avoid italic for purely informational content.
- Use Inter Medium and Semibold sparingly. Body copy is always Regular. Bold weights are reserved for eyebrows, labels, and emphasis within paragraphs.
- All-caps treatment is reserved for short phrases (eyebrows, labels, dates). Never set Cormorant in all caps. Never set body copy in all caps.
- Letter-spacing scales inversely with size. Tight tracking (–0.5px) for large display, neutral for body, wide tracking (3–5px) for small all-caps elements only.
- Both Cormorant and Inter are free under the SIL Open Font License. Designers, partners, sponsors, and venues may use them without licensing concerns.

SOURCES & ACCESS

- Cormorant: fonts.google.com/specimen/Cormorant — download the full family or load via Google Fonts CDN.
- Inter: fonts.google.com/specimen/Inter or rsms.me/inter — download the full family or load via Google Fonts CDN.
- Both fonts are pre-installed in Figma, Canva, Adobe Express, and most modern design tools. System-font fallbacks: Cormorant → Garamond → Georgia · Inter → Helvetica → system-ui.
